Nagy got me through my first year of teaching, which lasted though 3 schools until I found my fourth. He helped me with my divorce, which lasted until my children were grown. There were times when I felt broken by one then the other would just come and obliterate my soul. I'll miss sharing politics. I'm going to miss, as the whole world will, his book on the dehydration of boxers to make weight. There are so many play dates he's going to miss with grandchildren. There's so much we will all miss from his fierce tenacity of being a good human being. Can you imagine how much better the world would be if everyone had just a single friend who brought honesty into their lives? Who will we have to help clear away the muck of today's politics? Nagy you brought more than you know. But, hey, you got time to play with Tuco and the boys' pomeranian. Take this rest you truly deserve while we remember your accomplishments ❤️
